DAILY LEADER.

FROM PETERSBURG. tonemy in southern Hotels-How Petersburg Looks-The Rews of the President's Death at the South.

Special Correspondence CLAVELAND LEADER. PETERSBURG, April 17th, 1865. DINNER AT THE GUNTHER HOUSE.

In the days of luxury and epicuranism it always supposed that people are good natured after dinner (provided, of course, that John likes the soup, and Jane don't its branches in well nigh all the loyal want to go shopping,) but one day at the States of the Union—ar association reprewant to go shopping,) but one day at the Gunther House will reverse that maxim, even in the minde of Grahamites. I have just had dinner, and I am ready to pitch into anything except pea-nuts. We live on them at the Gunther House, cocked and raw, but always pea-nuts. Here's our bill of fars: Pea-nut sour. Vegetables. Atparagus and pea-nuts. Pastry, Pea-nut our country, "our lives, our property, and our sacred honor." pie. Desert, Pea-nuts in the shell. Mark pie. Desert, Pea-nuts in the shell. Mark this infernal barbarism, and this too, in "reconstructed" Virginia, and among the how fossil aristocracy. My companion, not feeling satisfied with his lunth, thought he would lubricate his stomach with a sup of the ardunt. Upon requesting the property of the ardunt. Upon requesting the property of the produce he was informed that prietor to produce he, was informed that none of the moist was to be found in Petersburg. "Hotel man," exclaimed my friend leaning heavily on the office counter, "repeat that slowly if you please."

The produce he, was informed that with the rebellion, gives us full assurance that in your hands our cause shall receive no detriment, and that our liberty and rights will be fully protected and sustained. We are not ignorant of the many neter, "repeat that slowly if you please." The landlord did so. "Vender of pea-made to the colored people of your nwn huts," resumed my companion, "briefly tell be high right in which they hold you me what my name is, and what age of the high estimate in which they hold you me what my name is, and what age of the high estimate in which they hold you have their friend and benefactor. world I live in, that I may be assured this

This is indeed a beautiful little city, with its handsomely paved streets, broad, neat sidewalks, substantial buriness houses, and superb private residences. Beyond the commercial portion of the city the streets are lined with shade trees, more than a hundred years old, that have grown so large that almost every avenue is completely arched over with the magnificent foliage these showery and sunny days of April bave brought forth. Gardens, too, in abundance, filled with the choicest exotics, are in full bloom, lending to the upper part of town the appearance of a forest of flowers. I visited the oldest church in this country, which was built nearly two hundred years ago, of sun-dried brick, brought from Dover, England. It seems not only to have resisted the storms of two centuries, but to have escaped the flercer storms of was which have just passed over it. This church has the highest steeple of any in the place, the top of which was decked with a statue of the goddess of liberty when the siege began. The right arm of this statue holding the residence in the kindness and honor which you now express to me in the same spirit I would if you were of another class.

I need not that to you my past history. It is well understood by you. In it you will find the guarantee of my future conduct toward your people. Where the colour toward your people. It is well understood by you. In it you will find the guarantee of my future conduct toward your people. It is well understood by you. In it you will find the guarantee of my future conduct toward your people. Where the colour toward your people. The same shifted the guarantee of any future conduct toward your people. On the bomb-proofs grow an assorted crop consisting of tobacco, wheat, clover and rya. In front of the works I saw a tiny bunch of violets bursting up through a bullethole in an old canteen, and near by it a surptual rose rested its crimson blossom on a shell that had crushed its stem. Peach trees pier ad and shattered with Peach trees pier ed and shattered with musket balls were in full spring dress, and the grave of some fallen warrior. Nature will oblitarate all indications of the terrible struggles enacted here in a brief period, and the vast fortifications of Petersburg will only be known as a historical truth. CITY POINT, April 17th, 1855.

Firing of half hour guns by an up bound steamer gave us the first intelligence of President Lincoln's assessination. Gloom President Lincoln's assessination. Gloom prevails everywhere. All seem to feel that the heaviest blow which has ever fallen upon the American people has descended. The death of the Chief Magistrate of the nation at any time is an event which profoundly affects the public mind, but the foundly affects the public mind, but the time, manner, and circumstances of President Lincoln's decease render it the most critical, the most painful, the most disastrous calamity which has ever befallen any nation or any people. This awful event has created the deepest sorrow where all an hour ago was hope and cherfulness.

No one had a firmer hold on thr popular heart than he, and no man on earth could be so illy spared this moment. After four years of unremitting toil, after advancing civilization a full century, just as his her-culcan task was performed, and the fruits of his labor becoming appreciated, to periah by an assassin's hand is terribly appalling beyond contemplation. What a deprayed villain, what a black-heartedwrstch, he but a who preciarmed this inferrible. he brute who performed this infernal deep while I write, the solemn booming of while I write, the breath booking of half hour guns comes from all quarters, sorrowini and tearful faces are passing by, gloom pervades all classes. Even the cit-izens walk with downcast heads, and express their utter abhorrence of this in hu man crime. Soldiers, who took the kindly profered hand of the President in the hospitals here a few days ago, are gathered in groups outside, discussing the painful news with overflowing eyes. But I cannot pur-sue this subject further, for I contemplate too deeply the frightful aspects of this dis-tressing event to continue. D.

National Monument to Abraham Lin coln.

The awful calamity, says the Philadelphia Inquirer, which has fallen upon the family of Mr. Lincoln, claims the sympathy of every good citizen. They have suddenly been deprived of their natural protector under the most disastrous circulations. umstances. How shall the people of the United States testify their admiration, sor-row and honest feelings? A good Presi-dent who serves out his term with honor and retires, is certain of the esteem and dent who serves out his term with honor and retires, is certain of the esteem and gratitude of his fellow-citizens during life and of their respect to his family after death. But the sudden taking off of Ansa-Ham Lincoln requires a different testino-will. We therefore success that subsections against that subsections are successful. nam Lincoln requires a different testimo-nial. We, therefore suggest that subscrip-tions be taken up in every city and town by the Mayor or chief officer, for a nation-al monument to Abraham Lincoln, and a nation's gift to his family. This would be a noble tribute, shall it not be commenced at once?

Two Hours along the old line.

We only had two hours to look at the works we have been watching so vigilantly for nine months past, from our dens of dirt over the way. But that was only an outside view. It is wonderful to notice how soon nature removes the marring effects of barbarous war. Already the forts are so nicely coated with green you'd hardly notice them, and embrasures—through which hastlig campung peeped three through which hastlig campung peeped three through which hastlig campung peeped three through which hastlig campung peeped three carries are inspected by the police. It is not cholers, but plague, with dilated pupils, carbuncles and pestilential bubo." Dr. graphed to its officials in Bussia for information relative to the epidemic in that

Cure Warranted, IF DIRECTIONS ARE POSTOWED, SCRIBING ALL SYMPTOMS.

The symptoms of Catasarh, as they generally appear, are at first very slight. Persons find they have a cold, that they have frequent attacks, and are more secsitive to the changes of temperature. In this condition, the ness may be dry, or a slight discharge, thin and acrid, attarwards becoming thick and adhesive, as the dischar becomes chronic the discharges are increased in quantity and changed in quality; they are now thick and heavy and are hawked or coughed off. The secretions are off-marine, beauting a had breath; the voice is thick and massal; the eyes are weak; the since of the med is increased or destroyed; deafaces frequently lakes place. Another common and important ymptom of Catarrh is, that the person is obliged to clear his threat in the morning of a thick or slimy mucus, which has fallen down from the beed furing the night. When this takes place the parton may be sure that his disease is on its way to the lungs, and stiouted lose no time in arroring it.
